

January 16, 2013

Citizens of Oxford and Visitors,

Welcome to the City of Oxford's new website!

You will find it packed with up-to-date information about our city. And you will find links to other websites such as Oxford College of Emory University and announcements of special events happening in the city.

Check in with us daily for the latest information on meetings of the City Council, the Planning Commission, the Tree Board and the Oxford Historical Society. Minutes of past meetings are posted as they are approved by the City Council (usually at the next business meeting). Public Hearing notices and City Council meeting agendas will be available several days in advance.

If you have questions about utility bills, taxes, court schedules, problems with street lights, traffic issues, and anything else about Oxford you will find it on the city's website or a link to where you can find it.

The City Clerk's office has worked with the website contractor for several months and we are looking forward to getting feedback from you. Tell us what you like or don't like and make suggestions for changes or additions. We want to hear from you!

Thanks, and let us know how we can do our jobs better.

Jerry